HUMAN RIGHTS & HEALTH

Article 25
1. Everyone has the right to a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of himself and of his family, including food, clothing, housing and medical care and necessary social services, and the right to security in the event of unemployment, sickness, disability, widowhood, old age or other lack of livelihood in circumstances beyond his control.

The Universal Declaration of Human Rights
Adopted and proclaimed by General Assembly resolution 217 A (III) of 10 December 1948, United Nations

HUMAN RIGHTS AND FUNDAMENTAL FREEDOMS IN LONG TERM CARE FACILITIES

- Private and governmental institutions;
- Private and governmental community based programs;
- Private and governmental residential programs;
- Older persons deprived of personal liberty in prisons;
- Specific human rights to be protected in those institutions;
- Obligations of Governments and concrete measures to be taken; and
- Specific procedures for registering long term care facilities under national law
CRITICAL AREAS TO BE REGULATED IN LONG TERM CARE FACILITIES

- Prohibitions with regard to limitation of human rights (ICCPR, American Convention and Siracusa Principles);

- The right to a dignified life and personal integrity: protection against seclusion, restraint, malnutrition, sexual and/or financial abuse, physical abuse by health personnel, older persons forced to eat meals they do not like, are locked up or tied to beds or are placed in physical positions that could affect a physical disability or cause wounds, intentionally do not provide older persons with potable water, adequate food or essential goods to take care of their hygiene.
• The right to mental integrity: Threatening of older persons with abandoning them, intimidation of older persons with words or gestures and deplorable living conditions in rooms and abandoning older persons who are forced to be in bed

• The right to security of person: Participation in the decision making process in the context of informed consent to treatment without threats, medical/scientific experimentation, right to a periodic review of any decision that refers to lack of legal capacity and/or appointment of a personal representative as a consequence of that incapacity
• The right to equal protection of the law: recognition of older individuals as “persons” before the law, participation in committees within long term care facilities, right to make decisions according to their own preferences in order to guarantee autonomy;

• Freedom of expression: all information about their fundamental rights and mechanisms of protection, freedom to communicate with other persons, to receive uncensored private communications, freedom to communicate with counsels or personal representatives, access to postal and telephone services, newspapers, radio and television
• The right to judicial protection and judicial guarantees: Key element in periodic review of appointments of personal representatives, guardianships, admission procedures to residential programs, informed consent procedures in the context of treatments, hearings before review bodies and appeals before Ombudspersons and national courts.
THE RIGHT TO HEALTH OF OLDER PERSONS

- Availability, accessibility, affordability and good quality of primary health care services, long term care, community based facilities and goods;

- Comprehensive review of health policies to preserve the health of older persons including prevention, rehabilitation and care of terminally ill;

- Adoption of a national plan and strategy on healthy and active ageing;

- Basic shelter, essential food, sanitation, potable water and essential medicines
SOME OBJECTIVES AND ACTIVITIES TO MAKE THE RIGHT TO HEALTH A REALITY (PAHO PLAN OF ACTION)

- Formulate policies, laws, regulations, programs and budgets consistent with UN and OAS human rights instruments;
- Disseminate OAS and UN human rights instruments;
- Develop legal frameworks and implementation mechanisms to protect the health of older persons in long term care services;
- Develop and implement programs to train relevant actors in the formulation of legal frameworks;
- Upgrade the competencies of personnel in delivering health service to older persons providing training that include the explanation of the UN and OAS human rights treaties and standards; and

• Regulate the delivery of care in long term care facilities for older persons with special attention to measures to guarantee their autonomy, care to the terminally ill and chronic patients, avoid pain and providing palliative care that allow the terminally ill to die with dignity
