

Sam Mshiu

Sam Mshiu, is a cooperative specialist with extensive experience in cooperative development gained from many years of cooperative work at national, regional and international levels.

After 19 years with the International Cooperative Alliance, he joined the ILO and worked in its various cooperative programmes – first as editor of the ILO MATCOM Project in Vienna, then as Regional Coordinator of the ILO COOPNET and COOPREFORM Programmes in Eastern and Southern Africa and, more recently, as Cooperative Development Expert with the ILO Cooperative Facility for Africa.

He has authored and edited numerous cooperative publications.

He is now a free-lance cooperative expert based in Moshi, Tanzania.